

1. Events in Google Analytics are user actions or interactions on a website or app that can be tracked, such as clicking a button, watching a video, or filling out a form..

Possess of creating an event: You can create a Google Analytics event by going to Admin > Events and clicking + Create event, or by using Google Tag Manager

2. To connect Google Analytics to your website, create a Google Analytics account, add a property for your site, and then install the tracking code using one of several methods: use a native integration or plugin if your platform supports it, link via Google Tag Manager, or manually add the provided JavaScript snippet to your site's HTML.

3. To add a sitemap to your robots.txt file, add the line Sitemap : [Your-Sitemap-URL] to the file, replacing [Your-Sitemap-URL] with the full URL of your sitemap. This directive can be placed anywhere in the file, as it is independent of other rules. You will need to locate your robots.txt file, which is usually in your website's root directory.
4. To connect Blogger to Google Analytics, find your Google Analytics Measurement ID in the Analytics dashboard, then go to your Blogger settings, click "Google Analytics Measurement ID" under "Basic," paste the ID, and click "Save"
